Robbers take cash, drugs

GRANITE CITY — Two armed robbers got away with cash and drugs from Hook's Drugs, formerly Rites Drugs, in the Bellemore Village Shopping Center at 6:07 p.m. Tuesday.

Bill Ellington, store manager, was able to escape from one robber and managed to elude a second suspect to run from the store and cross Nameoki Road to Coolidge Junior High School to alert police.

Information about the amount of money and quantity of drugs taken from the store was not immediately available. Assistant Police Chief Lt. Col. Ron Selph said Wednesday afternoon.

An investigation is under way.

Police Lt. Dennis Chenault was the first to respond to the robbery alert and went inside the store at 3216 Nameoki Road.

As other squad cars converged at the scene, officers searched the building, but the suspects apparently had fled.

A patrolman heard a noise from an office area at the rear of the store and ordered those inside to come out one at a time.

Kevin A. Doak, 22, an employee, was the first to emerge. Following him out was Steve A. Brewer, 35, of Granite City, a friend of Ellington's who was visiting the store manager in his office when the robbery occurred.

Doak said he was working at the pharmacy cash register when one robber came running through the store's back door and onto the platform area where Doak was standing. "Give me your drugs," the man said.

The robber was white, about 35 years old, and wore a fake reddish brown beard, police were told. He held a gun.

The suspect saw Ellington and Brewer inside the office and appeared nervous, Doak said. He pointed the weapon at the two men and pushed Doak into the room.

Brewer said the suspect came into the office pointing a weapon and said, "Get down on the floor." The men complied. The robber again demanded drugs and told the manager to get up and get them.

While the suspect had his back to Ellington, the manager ran from the office toward the front of the store.

Ellington, 32, was stopped by a second robber near the front of the building and was told to get back to the rear of the store, Ellington told police.

Ellington moved toward the back of the store but maneuvered around the aisles and ran through the front door to the parking lot and across the road to the school, where someone called police, he said.

The second suspect was described as shorter and stockier than the first man and wore a mask over his eyes. He held a small-caliber revolver.

Descriptions of the suspects were being reviewed and some witnesses were being interviewed again Wednesday, Selph said.

A cash register drawer in the pharmacy was pulled out and was found on the floor with most of the currency taken, police said. Various bottles of drugs also were on the floor.

A second cash register at the rear of the store also had been opened and looted.

Hanging ruled suicide; family not convinced

EDWARDSVILLE — A coroner's jury ruled the death of Granite City resident Jerry W. Jones a suicide Wednesday, but family members said they remain unconvinced.

The two-month-old four-woman jury told the presiding official, Deputy Coroner Ralph Baahli, that the July 27 death appeared to have been caused by "acute asphyxiation due to hanging by a rope" and that it appeared to have been self-inflicted.

Granite City Police Det. Ned Tapp testified he was called to the Jones residence, 2456 Illinois Ave., at about 12:55 p.m. and found the body lying on the basement steps with a rope around the neck. The body was just below a cross beam, believed to be where the rope had been tied.

Tapp said he interviewed Tina Steelman, who lived there and was the mother of Jones' 14-month-old son. She said she had left the home to pick up a public aid check and food stamps, leaving the child asleep in a bedroom. Upon returning, she found Jones hanging from the basement beam, Tapp told the jury.

Stelman was quoted as saying she had sought help — after seeing the body — from two friends of Jones', Kevin Boyd and Glen Hunter, who worked at a trucking supply company down the street. The two men went to the home with Steelman; Boyd cut down the body while Hunter called an ambulance. Jurors were told Steelman was subpoenaed but did not appear at the inquest.

Tapp said interviews with friends and family members showed Jones was despondent because of failure to secure employment. He had quit his job at Precast Metals after a disagreement with a supervisor a few days earlier.

Jones was said to have held several different jobs in recent months. He had been treated for "anxiety-depression syndrome" and had been taking medication for that condition since February.

Tapp said Steelman alleged that on the night before Jones' death he had been drinking heavily, smoking cocaine and taking more than the prescribed amount of his medication.

Tapp testified Jones was known by police to be acquainted with drug dealers, and that recently Jones allegedly began dealing cocaine from his home.

Reports indicated that cocaine, alcohol, trace amounts of marijuana and large amounts of the prescription medicine were found in Jones' body.

Stelman allegedly told Tapp that Jones had called a drug treatment center on the morning of the day of his death, to inquire about entering its pro-

Closed campus pan progresses

By Nicole Vaughn

GRANITE CITY — With the start of school just around the corner, District 9 officials are putting the finishing touches on their plan to close the campus during lunch periods at Granite City High School.

Five additional campus monitors were hired during the Aug. 8 meeting. They include: Carolyn Walker, Charles Jakub, Beverly Golden, full-time; Terry Kent and Laura Landman, part-time. The high school currently has two full-time monitors.

The board voted April 18 to close the campus on a one-year trial basis. Mounting problems cited in making that decision included drug activity, student safety in traffic, loitering in the Bellemore Village Shopping Center and shoplifting from local businesses.

These and other problems were addressed in a report prepared by Granite City Police Lt. Dan Schuler and presented to the board in March.

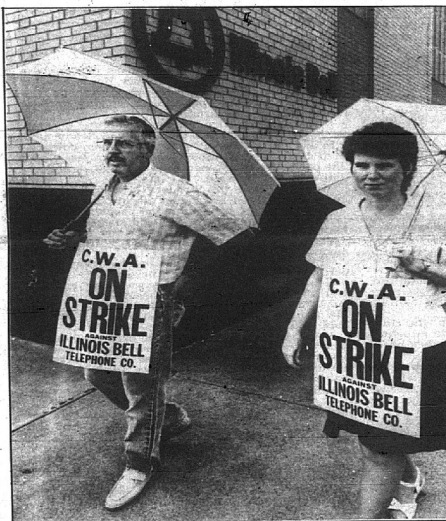

"We're just about ready," Mike Sikora, secondary education administrative assistant, said. Sikora said an orientation program for the new campus monitors is planned for this week.

Two-way radios and a base station the monitors will be using have not yet arrived, he said.

Sikora said efforts to obtain a Federal Communications Commission license for the frequency that the monitors will use are already in progress.

"We'll have our own frequency," Sikora said. "We won't be using the one used by the police."

Radio interferes with phone calls at Nameoki

By Meg Tebo

NAMEOKI — At the Nameoki Township office, the choice of whether employees may listen to the radio while working is not so much a matter of a supervisor's preference as which department you work in and how often you use the phone.

Since the installation of a used phone system at the Township Hall, some employees have experienced interference from the radio's broadcast tower on their office phone lines.

The problem is in the process of being corrected, board member Ken Davis said.

McCaskill addresses property problems

By Andy Slaring

VENICE — The local school superintendent says that derelict homes owned by he and members of his family are the result of inheritance, and he suggests formation of a task force of "non-partisan" business leaders to try to solve the overall home condition problem in the city.

In a three-page letter to the mayor and Venice City Council, District 3 Superintendent Charles McCaskill attempted to explain how the properties came to be derelict. The council had invited McCaskill to appear before it, but McCaskill sent the letter instead. The correspondence was read during the Tuesday night session of the council.

The council is concerned about properties owned by McCaskill and his family on Calhoun Street in North Venice. Following a Press-Record/Journal article describing the properties, which appeared Aug. 6, the properties were boarded up and weeds were cut on one vacant lot owned by McCaskill and his brothers, Randall and Earle.

In the letter, McCaskill denied owning more than one derelict house in the 1000 block of Calhoun Street. However, the Venice Township assessor and the staff of the Madison

Six Mile to get historic marker

GRANITE CITY — On Sunday, Aug. 20, the Old Six Mile Museum will dedicate an Illinois State Historic Site Marker in the yard at the museum.

The house which the museum occupies, the old Zippel residence, was built in 1837.

Only three markers are approved each year by the Illinois State Historical Society.

This was the second time the museum, which was dedicated November 1984, had applied for the historic designation.

"We feel very fortunate that we chose this time," said Linda Koenig, chairman of the board of Trustees of Old Six Mile Historical Society.

State Rep. Sam Wolf will speak at the ceremony to dedicate the 6-foot tall aluminum marker. The ceremony will begin at 2 p.m.

Georgia Engelke researched the information on the marker.

Also on Sunday, the newly renovated Travelers Room will be dedicated to the memory of her husband, Wilbert Engelke, who died in May. The room was restored with funds received from memorials to Engelke.

Old Six Mile Museum is located at 3275 Maryville Road, at Stratford Lane.

Venice school board considers sexual misconduct insurance

By Meg Tebo

VENICE — The Venice school board is considering a proposal from its insurance company that would provide coverage in the event of a sexual misconduct suit against the district.

The proposal, which has been referred to the board's policy committee, would cost the district about $4 per student and would help pay legal expenses if the district were sued in a sexual misconduct case.

The policy carries a $150,000 deductible.

The committee will report its recommendation on purchasing the policy at the next regular board meeting on Aug. 25.

according to Superintendent Charles McCaskill.

Previously, such insurance coverage was unavailable, but the Mississippi Valley Insurance Co., of which Venice is a member, recently was informed that such coverage is now available from a Missouri company.

A school district in the Alton area that is also a member of the cooperative has had allegations of sexual misconduct made against a staff member in the past, as have several other districts in Illinois, records show.

Venice has had no such allegations, McCaskill said.

In other business, the board agreed to renew its contract with the Herff Jones Co. to provide diplomas for the 1990 and 1991 graduation exercises.

The diplomas will cost $4.12 each, up from $3.71 in the previous contract.

Inserts for the diplomas will cost $2.46 each, up from $1.55.

The board approved the schedule for the teachers' institute session Aug. 23.

The institute will include speakers from the Coordinated Youth Services, the Wellness Program (a drug and alcohol abuse counseling group) and the United Way.

School district attorney Mike Bilbrey will speak to the teachers on district policies.

School will open Aug. 24 in Venice.

Missing from Rody's vehicle were a radar detector and change. Dunn reported the theft of a leather briefcase containing papers and personal effects, a pair of sunglasses and seven instructional cassette tapes.

Most of the property taken in the burglaries was recovered, Det. Michael Gage said.

To serve and protect — with the proper conduct

By Walter Pritchard
Staff writer

The job of a police officer is to serve and protect. But in a time when the moral and ethical standards of many long-standing American institutions are coming under closer public scrutiny, law enforcement agencies also find themselves under an ever watchful eye.

In an effort to clearly define its role in the community, the St. Louis County Police Department has published an eight-point value code to articulate the department's attitudes regarding moral, ethical and professional conduct.

Published in pamphlet form, the "Statement of Values" was compiled by county police personnel, both commissioned and civilian. It was adopted in July by the Executive Directors' Conference, a group made up of commanders from the county police's five divisions.

The pamphlet is available at all county police precinct stations.

Topics covered in the code are human life, accountability, laws and the Constitution, integrity, excellence, cooperation, problem-solving and the police themselves.

For example, concerning human life, the statement reads: "We give first priority to situations which threaten life. We use force only when necessary."

According to Major Larry Wadsack of the county police, the job of the police is to protect life and property. But life takes priority, and force may sometimes be necessary to protect a life that is in danger, he said.

James Brady of the county police's informational services unit said the value statements are nothing new, but have been written out only to promote a better understanding between the police and the community.

"We're going right out front and telling the (public) what we stand for," he said.

Brady said that in a climate where tougher moral and ethical questions about the conduct of public figures are being asked, the need to be open is of vital importance.

He pointed to recent disclosures in Congress concerning the behavior of former House Speaker Jim Wright as an example.

He said the police officer is in no way immune to the tougher standards.

"Years ago, police officers were the ultimate authority figure in the community," Brady said. "In the 1960s, it was all right to put them down."

"I believe we're moving back to an era where the police are being seen once again as an authoritative figure," he said.

Wadsack said the process of compiling the beliefs in written form took about three months and involved not just command people, but every level of the department. He said suggestions and ideas from department employees and from other agencies who have implemented similar statements were utilized.

"These are general beliefs, and our policies support these value statements," he said.

He added that if police personnel don't conform with the stated beliefs, they most likely will not conform with policies of the department. If that's the case, they will be dealt with accordingly, Wadsack said.

Value statements are common place in industry, where they are often expressed in corporate advertising. However, a number of police departments across the country have adopted similar values as a matter of public record.

Officer Patrick Garey of the county police North County precinct and a 12-year veteran of the department said the public's perception about the police has changed, especially in light of an increase in drug-related crime.

He said with police departments conducting drug tests on themselves and with the media reporting more stories about drugs and crime, many people are asking, "What's going on?"

"It's the one bad apple sort of thing," he said. "(The value statements) will clarify things."

... and the code of ethics

The St. Louis County Police Department recently issued a statement of values concerning their beliefs as a law enforcement agency. The following are excerpts from the pamphlet:

• "On human life." "We give first priority to situations which threaten life. We use force only when necessary."

• "On integrity." "We make decisions without regard to personal benefit. We are consistent in our beliefs and actions."

• "On accountability." "We thoroughly and equitably investigate complaints against our employees."

• "On laws and constitution." "We respect and protect the rights of all people."

• "On themselves." "We respect, care about, trust and support each other. We are disciplined and reliable."

• "On cooperation." "We share our responsibility to serve the people of St. Louis County with many other agencies and organizations."

• "On excellence." "We train and develop our employees to their highest potential."

• "On problem-solving." "We believe objectivity is essential to clear thinking."

Multiple charges filed after run-in Brian K. Arnold, 24, of the 2200 block of Lincoln Avenue was arrested Aug. 13 on nine charges following two incidents at the home of Gayle L. Bowler, 28, of Wilson Park Drive and further events at a pay phone at 25th and Benton streets.

Bowler called police at 3:42 a.m. and reported Arnold had just forced his way into her residence, damaged a television set and cable box, and struck her in the mouth and nose, threw her to the floor and kicked her in the ribs several times.

After taking the report, police returned to the station and found Bowler had an order of protection against Arnold. At the same time, Arnold allegedly returned to Bowler's home, broke down the door, grabbed her by the hair and knocked her head against a wall.

While police were at Bowler's home, following the second incident, the phone rang and Bowler told police it was Arnold. She asked where he was and he reportedly told her he was at a phone at 25th and Benton.

Police found a man fitting a description given by Bowler, standing at a pay phone. When asked for identification, Arnold reportedly gave a false name and then began screaming profanity at the officers.

After being told he was under arrest, Arnold allegedly pushed an officer while being searched and force was used to handcuff him. At Bowler's home, she identified him and he was taken to the Granite City Jail.

Arnold was charged with two counts of battery, two counts of criminal damage to property, and single counts of criminal trespass, disorderly conduct, obstructing justice, resisting a peace officer and violating an order of protection. Bail was set at $766 cash.

'Jaws' gives credit to Jesus

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — He's big. He's not much for looks. He's a pussycat.

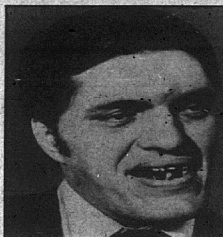

He's Richard Dawson Kiel, a.k.a. "Jaws," the steel-toothed bizzaro of the James Bond movies "Moonraker" and "The Spy Who Loved Me."

How big is he? Try 7 feet 2 inches and 325 pounds. Try a 17-triple-E shoe and a size-18 wedding band that looks like a napkin holder.

How physically unattractive is he? His face is lumpy, his hair is like straw, and his teeth are as crooked as a picket fence in a ghost town. His complexion is sallow, and his brow bulges, creating craters, where most people have temples.

But how nice is he? Very. Monstrous outwardly, Kiel is actually a gentle giant with a pleasant, self-effacing sense of humor. He's a loving husband and a doting father of four.

He's also a committed Christian who adds to his autographs the inscriptions, "God bless you!" and "John 3:16-18."

Richard Kiel
... as Bond's opponent

Kiel, 49, spoke Aug. 6 at First Assembly of God in Granite City. There he shared what his faith has done for him and his family.

He speaks often at churches across the U.S. and Canada, traveling from his home in Coarsegold, Calif., near Yosemite National Park.

Among the benefits he says have been received from God is the power of healing.

"I've seen people cured of all manner of things through Christ," he said in an interview. He has a deep voice.

In 1979, Kiel said, he was mired in depression and alcoholism. He was home watching "The 700 Club," a Christian TV show. A guest on the show talked about his own alcoholism and how it had cost him his family, job and home, but that he had been cured through prayer.

Kiel prayed that morning in front of the TV. He has not had a drink since.

"From that moment my addiction to alcohol was just totally removed," he said.

He says his daughter, Jennifer, 12, was cured of a hairline fracture of the elbow by the laying on of hands. Two weeks later, she won the California state gymnastics title in her age group.

He says he has seen a young man have the symptoms of cerebral palsy temporarily removed.

Kiel was 19 when his father died. The family business, an appliance and TV shop, had to be sold. He needed to make a living, and an aunt suggested he try acting.

He got laughed out of agents' offices at first.

But eventually he landed a role on the TV series "Kojak." He played opposite James Coburn as a bare-knuckle fighter who took on all comers. Appearances followed on "The Twilight Zone" and "Wild, Wild West."

But for 17 years, Kiel supplemented his income by selling cars, real estate and Fuller brushes.

He was a nightclub bouncer. He was always successful, a top salesman, and eventually he wound up being a landlord with extensive holdings.

For all his success, something was missing. That something was God, he said.

Kiel owns a production company that makes Christian, family-oriented movies — New Generation Productions Inc.

"The bottom line is, where are we going to spend eternity?" Kiel said.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

A living will is a written declaration which instructs a physician to withhold or withdraw death delaying procedures in the event of a terminal condition. Illinois recognizes the right of an individual to sign such a document.

Problems have arisen in many states regarding the language of living wills. Sometimes it is not made clear to attending physicians what procedures the patient wants started or stopped. Many documents use such terms as "terminally ill," "no reasonable expectation of recovery," or "life-prolonging procedures." Doctors will often keep patients alive because it is not clear what these terms mean and because they fear that state law will not support their interpretations.

In one recent case in Florida, an 85-year-old woman had a living will prepared in 1985. It provided that if she should ever become terminally ill, life-sustaining procedures should be withdrawn. Almost two years later, a stroke left her almost totally paralyzed. She is unable to communicate or swallow, and she is fed through a feeding tube.

In this case, a dispute has arisen over the meaning of the phrase "death is imminent" in her living will. The document indicates that all life-sustaining efforts should cease once death is imminent, but her guardian and attending physicians cannot agree as to what this phrase means. The guardian has argued that this point has been reached since she will die without her feeding tube. Doctors and nurses at the nursing home, however, are refusing to detach her tubes because the state law requires that nursing homes feed all patients.

The trial court held that death was not imminent and that the tubes could not be removed. The Appellate Court then ruled that she had a right to die. This case is due to be heard by the Florida Supreme Court this Fall.

The problems encountered by this woman may not be totally avoidable at this point in time. There are, however, certain steps that one can take to ensure that life-sustaining procedures will be avoided in certain circumstances. It is suggested that the patient have a talk with his physician to be sure the doctor understands and supports the patient's wishes. It is also recommended that the person having the living will prepared be as specific and detailed as possible when describing treatments he may or may not want provided.

Italian reunion held

An Italian Heritage Reunion was held Aug. 6, for the families of Bilbrey, Ferrer, Mangiaracino, Mangi, Manno, Ponce, Scaturro, Sennet, Shambro and Svezia.

The reunion was held at St. Mark's Catholic Church in Venice with a Mass held by parish priest Father Paschal LoBianco. Many members at this reunion had attended St. Mark's Church and School at one time or another during their lives. Many were baptized, married and had children baptized in the church.

The church altar was adorned with red and white carnations with green ribbons tied to wicker baskets placed in areas around the altar.

After Mass everyone gathered in the hall to enjoy entrees of Italian pasta, salads and desserts made from old favorite recipes of the family. During the afternoon, a video was made of each individual family. Each family prepared a brief monologue on its own heritage and it was presented by elected spokesmen.

Approximately 425 members attended from around the United States. The day not only consisted of reminiscing of good times held in "Little Italy" as it was known years back, but also displays of family portraits ranging from wedding pictures, old family gatherings, and the first auto being driven down the streets in the town. Older members told how their ancestors traveled from different parts of Italy to Louisiana, then to their final settlement in Venice.

Pastor serves as mission evangelist

Dr. Bob Jones, pastor of the Grace Baptist Church of Granite City, and his wife, Peggy, recently returned from nine days in South America as missionary evangelists.

The Grace Baptist Church, in cooperation with the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board, sent the couple to Venezuela on July 13-22. Joining them were 11 people from the Kentucky Baptist Convention.

According to Jones, as a result of this team's combined effort, 422 professions of faith were made. A team of medical missionaries from the United States also saw 284 professions of faith. A total of 706 people were reported to have accepted Christ as a result of the nine-day missionary endeavor, and Dr. and Mrs. Jones reported seeing 192 people saved.

The Jones worked in the Valencia area where Southern Baptists presently have five missionary families. Another Granite City group, the family of Roy Hankins, was assigned to the Jones project and through them they met with other missionaries.

"I have never seen more dedication from anyone than I have seen from these missionaries to Venezuela," said Jones. "They are committed to the salvation of the Venezuelan people," he added. "Our mission money is being well spent and we were thrilled to see the new Baptist camp that has been built through the Lottie Moon Christmas Offerings."

Jones and his wife were also honored by members of the church in an eighth anniversary celebration. Jones and his wife, Peggy, moved to Granite City in July of 1981. Since then he has served as the pastor of Grace Baptist Church, 2600 Edwards St. Jones, originally from Paducah, Ky., says he now calls Granite City his home.

Eagle Scout helps the Salvation Army

Eric Warnhoff of Granite City has completed his Eagle project, his last step for acquiring Eagle rank.

He belongs to the Boy Scouts of America and is currently active with Troop 5. He contacted the Salvation Army in a search to help the community.

Captain Curtiss Hartley, associated with the local Salvation Army, said the parking lot was in need of repair. Eric decided to take this challenge. He organized a work party consisting of Billy Cathey, William Horn, Patrick Spivey, Jason Markovich, Brian Cholevik, Mark Schuette, and Danny Lemp, the assistant of Eric's project.

Eric contacted Supt. of Streets Mac Warfield who was very cooperative with his project. Warfield supplied the proper materials and demonstrated the work that needed to be done. Lemp, who was in charge of getting the food, contacted Domino's Pizza, which donated four large pizzas.

Warnhoff said he was thankful to the several people and entities that assisted in his project.

State and flange floors can be cleaned with a muriatic acid solution. Important: add acid to water, not the other way around; mix in a glass, plastic or wooden bucket, and wear rubber gloves. Want to add country charm to a bathroom? Stain towels in an antique kitchen cupboard, a small dresser, even an old trunk lined with fabric or interesting wallpaper.

You'll get better results painting a stained wooden chair if you first remove wax and stain with fine steel wool dipped in paint thinner. Work one section at a time. First coat should be a dirt-killing primer so that the stain won't bleed through the paint.

Afternoons at BAC cost less

More than 75 classes, with starting times from 2 to 5 p.m., are being offered throughout the Belleville Area College district this fall at the reduced tuition rate of $25 per credit hour.

Students will have this opportunity to save $5 per credit hour by attending afternoon college at the Belleville, Granite City and Red Bud campuses, and at extension centers in Cahokia, Chester, Columbia, Highland, Mascoutah and O'Fallon.

Most classes begin Aug. 28, one week after on-campus classes, and end Dec. 18. Classes in Cahokia and Columbia begin Sept. 12. Phone registration is available, toll-free (in Illinois), by calling 1-800-BAC-5131. Payment by MasterCard and Visa is accepted.

High school students have the opportunity to get a head start on earning college credit and business employees might find classes that enhance their job skills offered at the end of their workday, a spokesman said.

Blood drive planned at BAC

The American Red Cross and radio station K-SHE 95 are hosting the "Rock and Roll Up Your Sleeve Blood Drive" in the Varsity Gymnasium of Belleville Area College at the Belleville Campus from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Aug. 18 and 19.

Anyone who would like to volunteer to work on either of the days may call Susan Miskel at the Red Cross at 277-9600. All volunteers and donors will receive a free K-SHE T-shirt.

The blood drive at BAC will be held simultaneously with one in St. Louis at Carpenter's Hall. The goal is to make this the largest media-sponsored blood drive in the nation.

Judith Rich receives degree

Judith M. Rich of Sacramento, Calif., formerly of Granite City, recently graduated magna cum laude from Golden Gate University there. She received a bachelor of science degree in business management.

Rich completed her first two years of undergraduate work at the University of Maryland, where she maintained a 4.0 grade point average. While at Golden Gate, she maintained a 3.8 grade point average on a 4.0 scale.

Rich is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Whitmer of Granite City and a 1964 graduate of Granite City High School. Dorothy Whitmer, Rich's mother, was among family members who attended commencement ceremonies held at the Mather Air Force Chapel in Sacramento.

Having worked with the federal government for 20 years, Rich has been in private industry for the past year, working on a personal research experiment.

Theresa Love gets 'A' for effort

Prof. Theresa Love ... teacher honored

Perhaps the thought was first planted in the mind of Theresa Love when she was a very small child, standing on tiptoe and lecturing her brother — she the teacher, while he played reluctant student.

Perhaps the desire took root when she was in grade school, admiring those women who brought knowledge and learning to children.

Although she can't exactly pinpoint the moment she made her decision, Theresa Love says she just knows she's always wanted to become a teacher, a desire turned reality for the 48-year veteran of the classroom who has been teaching at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville since 1971.

She is one of this year's winners of the SIUE Teaching Excellence Award, given upon recommendations of hundreds of students and upon evaluations by colleagues. Part of the selection is based on the award committee's observance of Prof. Love in class.

Now a professor of English language and literature at SIUE, Prof. Love has also taught at Stillman College in Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Central State College in Wilberforce, Ohio; Southern University at Baton Rouge, La.; and Norfolk State College at Norfolk, Va., just to name a few.

"All my life I've always wanted to be a teacher," Love said. "When I was four years old, I was always 'teaching' my dolls, my cats and my poor little brother who had listen to me. I would stand on my toes because I believed all teachers were good heels."

"A teacher is all I ever wanted to be," she said. "It sounds ordinary, but it's true. Prof. Love's teaching career began at McKinley High School in Baton Rouge, where she herself attended. Commanding respect from some of the very same students with whom she'd attended school was difficult, but she persevered.

Her career eventually took her to Norfolk State, where she met Ramon Williamson who is now an SIUE music professor. "I knew Ramon got a job at SIUE," he told them about me and they recruited me here," Prof. Love said.

The award is a distinction to which most teachers aspire and one that echoes a note of thanks from several hundred students who gave Love favorable recommendations.

According to Douglas Eder, a professor of biological sciences at the University and chair of the award committee, Prof.

SIUE Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville

Love engages students in "animated classroom discussion." In a committee recommendation of Prof. Love to Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs David Werner, Eder wrote: "Learning is not a passive process and Prof. Love refuses to permit her students to encounter knowledge in a passive manner."

"For her unusual and active engagement of undergraduate students in the continuing act of learning, Prof. Love is recommended for the award," Eder wrote. The committee is composed of faculty and student representatives appointed by the deans of each school at SIUE.

The committee decided to split this year's award between Love and Emily Krohn, an associate professor of psychology. Love refers to her style of teaching as "down-to-earth" and very casual. "I suppose my teaching technique goes back to my father who was a preacher in Baton Rouge," she said. "He would argue about issues and it angered me because he would take the conservative stand."

"We would argue the issues furiously and it wasn't until right before my mother died that I found out he was taking opposing points of view so I would discuss the issues," Love said. "And, that's what I do with my students. I'll say all sorts of outlandish things, some things I actually don't believe just to make them think."

"I also get my students involved by sending them to the blackboard to explain what I've been teaching," she said. "And I always have a collection of tables or stools to help them remember what they've learned. For example, if I make a point, I back it up with an anecdote so they won't forget it."

As for the award, Love said she was surprised, and she gives most of the credit to her students, who she believes kept the classroom interesting through the years. "If I have any claim to being an effective teacher," she said, it's because I've had good students. Actually, my students should have the award.

"I'm retiring in two years and I feel good that something good happened (receiving the award) at the end," she said.

"At some universities you might get the idea the administration doesn't care about teaching-only whether or not a teacher publishes, but not how the students feel. That's not the case here at SIUE."

Following the hearing, family members of Jones said he was found with rope burns on his hand and shoulder. They said they had learned Jones might have been wearing different clothing when found than he had been wearing when Steelman left the house.

Pathology reports indicated rope marks had occurred after death, apparently while the body was lying on top of the rope on the basement stairs.

Tapp testified the pathologists found no evidence of foul play on the body, nor did Tapp find any evidence of foul play in the home.

"He will try to make it (the cafeteria) as good as he can," Sikora said. Ervay was hospitalized earlier last week after suffering a minor stroke, Superintendent Gib Walmsley announced during the Aug. 8 meeting.

"It's going to be quite a change," Sikora said of the closed campus.

"Generally, it seems to be a small problem, and so I think we ought to just go ahead and pay the bill pending the final working-out of these few things."

But board member Dell Whitsett voted against Davis' motion to pay for the system, which was obtained from a former law firm with which Township Attorney Irvin Slate Jr. was once affiliated.

Whitsett took issue with the $3,000 cost of the system.

The vote to pay for the system passed 4-1, with only Whitsett dissenting.

Madison County Federal S&L likely to be acquired or merged

By Jason Moody
Staff writer

WASHINGTON — While there are no specific plans, Granite City-based Madison County Federal Savings and Loan could be acquired or merged into another thrift institution later this year.

Although several Madison County area thrifts do not meet the new standards set out in the major savings and loan bailout legislation signed Aug. 9 by President George Bush, the new law will not cause an immediate disruption in service, local financial officials say.

The law calls for creation of the Resolution Trust Corporation, which is responsible for disposing of financially insolvent S&Ls.

Madison County Federal Savings and Loan will be placed under the control of the Resolution Trust, with a decision on it being made during the next several months, said Dick Reiff, regional manager for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

"The new funds (provided under the legislation) mean we can begin to dispose of these insolvent institutions," said Reiff.

But Paul Sodko, president of Madison County Federal, said Monday afternoon it was his understanding that the RTC was created only to handle the assets that acquiring institutions don't want in mergers.

Sodko said he didn't know yet what would happen to the troubled savings and loan, but he said a merger would be the "most logical choice."

Sodko emphasized that no potential merger details were currently in the works.

First Federal Savings and Loan of East Alton will also come under the control of the newly created Resolution Trust Corp. First Federal is now being overseen by the FDIC.

Reiff said the RTC would sell First FS&LA to a healthier institution, liquidate its assets and pay off the depositors, or transfer the deposits to another institution.

Three other Madison County area thrifts hold capital-to-asset ratios below the 3 percent level required by the new S&L legislation and will be forced to take corrective action in the next few months.

In addition to giving the federal government the power and money to close or sell failing S&Ls, raise deposit insurance rates and increase penalties for abuses, the new law forces thrifts to retain a higher proportion of their deposits.

The Germania Bank in Alton, the Metro Savings Bank in Wood River, and Illinois Federal Savings and Loan with a branch in Glen Carbon hold less than 3 percent of their assets in the form of tangible capital, according to Sheshunoff Information Services, a Texas-based financial research group.

"Undercapitalized S&Ls will have to raise their core capital-to-assets ratio the old-fashioned way by retaining earnings or by selling stock if their prospects are sound, or by shrinking the size of the institution," said Alex Sheshunoff, president of the research group.

"Those that can't meet the capital requirements very likely will be acquired by healthy thrifts or banks," Sheshunoff added.

However, officials at all three Madison County institutions said the tougher requirements will not have an immediate impact on their operations or the services they provide because they anticipated the change.

However, Witschick said that in the long term the bank would have to sell some stock and raise capital to meet the tougher criteria and customers might see a slight decline in savings rates.

Jimmie New of Germania Bank also said customers would experience little change in service.

Illini Federal Savings and Loan Association already announced plans in June to merge with First Financial in Stevens Point, Wis.

"Under the circumstances we thought we would be better off merging with the financially stronger First Financial," said Richard May, chairman of the board for Illini FS&LA.

IP, industries approve plan to cut risk of power cutoffs

By Dennis McMurray
Staff writer

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois Commerce Commission has approved a settlement between Illinois Power Co. and large industries to reduce their risk of power interruptions.

The settlement, which was reached after a negotiating session last month in St. Louis, ends a dispute between the utility and its large industrial customers on interruptible power. The firms had been warned to expect from seven to 29 power shutoffs a year.

These customers pay 20-50 percent less than other firms, but they are not guaranteed uninterrupted power supplies, said Murray Sim, IP director of regulatory affairs.

The settlement allows two rate options in addition to the current interruptible service or firm service. They are available this month, but the firms have until Sept. 1 to indicate whether they want to shift to one of them.

One option, in effect only until March 31, would result in about six shutoffs a year.

The demand charge would be increased from 11 cents per kilowatt to $1.01 per kilowatt for low-voltage service and $1.11 per kilowatt for high-voltage service.

Because demand charges are a relatively small part of the total electric charge, the overall cost to industrial customers taking the option would be 2-8 percent, Sim said.

The other new option would allow the firms to make a phased-in switch to firm service over five years. The charges would be increased gradually until the full price was reached.

Sim said he believed both sides had wanted a settlement to avoid a long period of expensive litigation over "what is basically a technical issue."

The dispute came before the ICC on June 6, when firms on interruptible service asked the commission to investigate the utility's decision to stop buying power from other utilities to supply them as it had in the past.

On June 20, Olin Corp. and several other IP industrial customers had to send workers home and cancel shifts because of a power shutoff.

Guns for an elf

Mini-firearms a winning hobby for Don Beck

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — If it's a short word with endless possibilities.

If wishes were Cadillacs, bag ladies would ride.

If leprechauns existed, and if they were to turn murderous as well as mischievous, they might well buy their firearms from Don Beck. If he would sell them.

But he probably wouldn't. Beck, 61, designs and makes miniature functioning firearms. There are only about 35 to 40 makers of miniature firearms worldwide, he said.

Beck's half-size replica of the classic Daisy Red Ryder BB gun won a silver medallion as one of the 10 Best of Show entries in the miniature firearms class in April at the National Rifle Association convention, held at the St. Louis Convention Center.

He and his winning entry were featured in the July issue of American Rifleman magazine and American Hunter.

Miniature firearms date to the 16th century, when a journeyman gunsmith, cutler or armorer had to fashion a fully workable gun, sword or suit of armor in miniature before becoming a master of his trade.

Beck, who worked for 29 years in the quality control department at Granite City Steel, is a meticulous man. Every hair is in place, and he speaks slowly and carefully. He tended to control this interview by ignoring questions and stating his story in the order he perceived as essential to understanding. His memory is also meticulous.

Some might find these characteristics annoying, but the habit of mind they reveal comes in handy when you have a hobby like his. It requires hours and hours of painstaking preparation and still more hours and hours of precise machine-work.

The Red Ryder took more than 200 hours to make. And that was just the time Beck spent in his own little machine shop in his garage. It doesn't include the countless hours spent on dozens of mechanical drawings detailing each step in the process.

Yet it's also "like whittling with steel," Beck said. In fact, that's how Beck got started making miniature firearms. After a series of heart attacks ravaged his heart and forced him to retire in 1977, Beck needed something to fill his time.

Restoring cars was simply too heavy work for a man with a damaged heart. Beck must take naps and rest periodically throughout the day. When he works at his projects, he works 10 minutes and rests for five minutes. He works sitting down on stools of various heights.

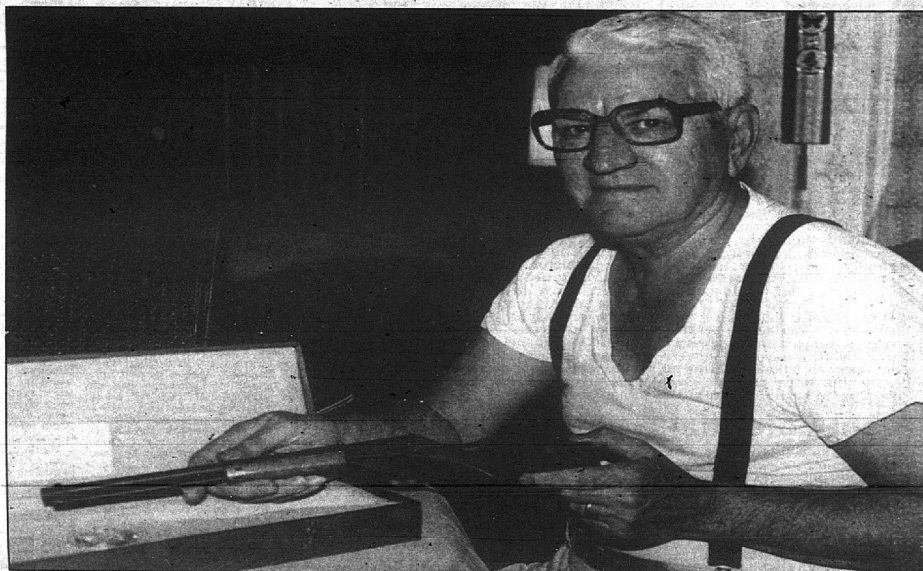

An accomplished handyman who restored cars, built his own house, and repaired every appliance in it at one time or another, Beck took to whittling.

Sometimes he whittled miniature guns and gave them away.

"Then I read an article about (real) miniature guns," he said. "I filed it in the back of my mind."

He began restoring firearms and then began making full-sized ones from scratch, using real guns as models.

"I kind of like the marriage of metal and wood in guns," he said. "Very few things have that marriage."

Don Beck with his award-winning Red Ryder

Then he picked up a BB gun at a yard sale. He picked up a few more and before he knew it, he had close to 100 old BB guns.

"It's better than collecting blowtorches," he said with a shrug. He already had several dozen antique blowtorches.

The story on miniature firearms resurfaced from the minutely organized files of his mind. He began working on a miniature black powder pistol. He finished it and graduated to a half-size Winchester Model 94, 30-caliber rifle.

"I'm still working on it," he said. "I kind of bit off more than I could chew."

Beck has completed three miniature firearms and is still working on seven others.

For all his skill with things mechanical — besides his house, he rebuilt two lathes in his shop and built his own power hacksaw and a strip sander from scratch — Beck almost didn't enter his prize-winning miniature in the NRA competition.

"I felt outclassed," Beck said. But he entered anyway and his Red Ryder was an instant hit. He got several offers to buy it.

"I thought, 'Maybe I've got something here.' It was the center of attention."

Then Beck backtracked, as if afraid he was tooting his own horn too much. He still seems to think that maybe his little gem was a winner solely because of "a wave of nostalgia," he says overtook the judges. After all, the first firearm most of them had handled as kids was a Red Ryder.

"Something happened with the judges," he said. "I just didn't think it took that much skill."

Maybe not. But, as one who fixes most things with duct tape, this reporter looks at handy men like Beck with awe.

And Beck has even bigger — uh, smaller plans. He's going to make a quarter-sized Red Ryder.

Because of the mechanical attributes of firearms, every reduction in size of the weapon requires an even greater reduction in size of the caliber of the projectile and the powder to shoot it. For instance, his half-size Red Ryder shoots a BB 1/8th the size of a normal BB.

For his quarter-scale gun, the BB will be 1/64th of a normal BB. Never mind leprechauns, how many angels could dance on a BB that size?

Shenker's skill, determination and suspenders recalled

His wide, colorful suspenders drew immediate attention to him, as did his self-assured manner.

Pacing like a powerful lion, his jacket off and his sleeves rolled up, the lawyer was intent on letting you know you had been in a battle, whether his side won or not.

THE YEAR was 1951 and the courtroom star was Morris Shenker, who died Aug. 8 in San Francisco, Calif., at the age of 82.

The funeral was held Sunday at Temple Israel in St. Louis County.

One of the nation's best-known criminal defense lawyers, he also was prominent in the 1970s and 1980s as the chief operator of the Dunes casino and hotel in Las Vegas.

Brother-in-law of the late Harold Koplar, owner of the luxurious Chase and Park Plaza hotels in St. Louis, Shenker became even more famous than the Koplars.

MY FIRST VIEW of him was at the crime hearings conducted in St. Louis nearly four decades ago by the late U.S. Senator Estes Kefauver.

Kefauver, a tall Tennessee Democrat who campaigned in a coonskin cap, later ran for vice president on the Adlai Stevenson ticket in 1956, defeating John F. Kennedy for the No. 2 nomination when Stevenson left the choice up to the delegates.

The hearings merited week-long coverage by the Press-Record because the list of public officials who had been called for possible testimony read like a Who's Who of Madison and St. Clair counties leaders.

MADISON COUNTY Sheriff Dallas Harrell had the misfortune of being a Republican officeholder summoned by a Democratic committee chairman who was making national headlines with hearings probing organized crime and other lawlessness.

Harrell was rebuked for alleged ineffectiveness when forced to sit at the microphone for a televised dialogue with Kefauver.

Time mercifully ran out before many other Madison County officials, including a number of mayors and police chiefs, could be heard. They were all Democrats.

Winter wonderland

By Bill Winter

BUT THE LOCAL officials had to sweat it out at the Court-house near the bright lights and the unblinking eyes of Channel 5 cameras.

There were high ratings for the coverage, narrated by the late KSD-TV anchor, Frank Eschen.

Shenker didn't represent the Illinoisans but he turned out to be the lawyer for a dozen or so of the week's major witnesses and crime suspects.

He was by far the busiest defense attorneys at this region's Senate hearings.

WITH A CIGAR in his mouth and a no-nonsense manner, Shenker seemed to be at the center of the stage all that week, challenging procedural rules and zealously trying to protect some fragile or non-existent reputations. Although born in Russia, he was a master of the English language and, its precise meanings as well as of lawbooks and court precedents.

After becoming a major figure in Nevada gambling and California real estate in his later years, Shenker in effect kept busy as a lawyer for himself, defending against frequent efforts by the Internal Revenue Service to collect vast sums of money from him.

IT IS FASCINATING to me to recall the mid-1950s era when the Club Prevue flourished on Collinsville Road in Madison County.

The club contained an illegal gambling casino and also had pretensions of being a leading restaurant and night club, hiring famous singers and comedians. Club Prevue featured silverware, plates and waiters from, would you believe, the Chase Hotel.

ONE OF THE KEY figures at the Club Prevue, John Connor, formerly ran the Hyde Park Club casino in Venice.

But he evidently saved a few pennies from the days when he represented reputed gangsters, because he was able to become a big stockholder in legal gaming enterprises.

THE COMPLEX business and financial empire that he created and controlled befuddled not only the IRS but also Nevada authorities.

After a long delay, the latter issued him a license in 1975 to personally run the Dunes.

The gaming officials did criticize his allegedly frequent talks with men involved in questionable activities, and Life magazine blasted him as a mob lawyer when he accepted the chairmanship of a St. Louis anti-crime commission. But he produced an impressive array of national figures who praised him and his kindness to poor people.

JIMMY HOFFA, Teamsters national president who was later kidnapped and apparently murdered, was one of Shenker's clients.

Shenker also defended the late St. Louis Metro East crime syndicate boss, Frank "Buster" Wortman.

Shenker himself was indicted in February 1989 for allegedly concealing hundreds of thousands of dollars from Uncle Sam and from bankruptcy creditors.

HE HAD FILED for bankruptcy in 1984 after losing a lawsuit that accused him of defaulting on $27 million loaned by union pension funds.

But many people felt that, had his health remained vigorous, he would have been able to explain to everyone's satisfaction the alleged concealment and default.

Among the highly-placed individuals who attested to his good works for "the underdog" were some who pointed to extensive charitable fund-raising efforts.

And Shenker was the founder of Dismas House, a St. Louis halfway house for ex-convicts.

Remove dangerous ruins now

The blackened ruins of two fire-ravaged buildings in Granite City are unattractive, to put it mildly. They are saddening, distasteful, almost sickening to behold.

But it is for a more serious reason than aesthetics that they should be removed, and removed quickly.

The former Washington elementary school on West 20th Street was the victim of flames on May 4; it now consists of a series of tall, unsupported wall structures that could fall — with tragic results — on youngsters playing in the area or adults walking near the once-bustling school building.

A vacant store/church building in the 1900 block of State Street burned April 27. It now is an unstable pile of rubble — unlovely and with the potential for harming people who stray near this downtown location.

Our Aug. 13 issue told the story eloquently, through photographs. These two sites have no justification to exist in their current altered states.

No doubt there are technical procedures and legal niceties that normally need to be followed. Ownership must be established, for example. This would suggest that the city should adopt an attitude of watchful waiting.

But that would be terribly wrong. A much more aggressive stance by the municipal government ought to be taken. After all, 3½ months have passed. Even Fire Chief Charlie Bernaix and City Inspector Vince Scrum have voiced concern about these dangerous eyesores.

In the event of a major disaster, city officials' civil defense powers would give them wide authority to seek prompt remedies. Since the condition of these two disaster sites also constitutes a true emergency, it is hard for laymen to understand why the city cannot act more quickly to achieve a solution.

If injuries occur, many people could say "We told you so." But by then, it would be too late.

While on the subject of needed cleanup efforts to remove unsightly hazards, we will mention our Aug. 6 disclosure of unsafe, uninspired parcels of property — unimproved lots and vacant houses — in North Venice, some of them owned by Charles McCaskill. Venice super-independent schools.

With all due regard for the burdens of Mr. McCaskill's job, and acknowledging that property records may not have caught up with ownership transfers, we feel he could and should give the attention necessary to end whatever problems exist on his land.

Residing in Edwardsville, he doesn't have to see or be near these deteriorated properties, which are a part of the Madison school district. But his sites' North Venice neighbors do have to put up with them, unless or until McCaskill or other owners or Venice city leaders do something about them.

Plant potential bodes well here

By anyone's standards, the importance of a business bringing 1,000 new jobs can never be underestimated. We've got the right resources to attract companies of that caliber, and this week we're told that with a little luck we'll also get those jobs.

The manager of the Tri-City Regional Port District said a South Korean company is interested in building a $150 million stainless steel casting plant here. The company has looked at a couple of sites in this area and should be making up its mind within the next three weeks.

This all sounds like great news, but don't pin your hopes on it. Companies have made such statements in the past and settled in points far beyond southern Illinois. But keep your fingers crossed; if Granite City lands a plant of even half the potential as this one, our community will feel the benefits for many years to come.

Also, don't assume that this decision will come in three weeks. Multi-million-dollar deals can be struck overnight, but they frequently take far longer.

Port District Manager Bob

Wydra declined to give the name of the company, saying it did not want the advance publicity. But he would say that the two sites looked at here include a part of Port District property on the Northgate Industrial Park site and a strip of property along Illinois 3 north of I-270.

As journalists we learn not to be too over-accepting of statements without proof, but it's hard not to be excited by the prospects of a major employer.

The State Department of Commerce and Community Affairs has campaigned hard in recent years to attract business to Illinois. In conjunction with Gov. Thompson's world ambassadorial travels, the state has been able to attract such enterprises as the Diamond Star auto plant in Bloomington-Normal, Illinois Power, owner of the Northgate park, also has a worldwide marketing campaign to lure potential consumers of electricity.

We're ready to roll out the red carpet, learn to speak Korean or do whatever it takes to get a business of this nature. Our public officials should be, too.

Pennant being pursued Zeile-ously

Todd Zeile, catcher and slugger, has just been called up to the St. Louis Cardinals, whose four straight wins have renewed pennant hopes although the team still must catch three foes just to earn a division title.

Since the Cardinals reached the World Series in 1985 and 1987, and this is another odd-numbered year, we suggest they add a few more victories to their streak and show those ruffians in Montreal, Chicago and New York what a championship squad can do.

Why, it's practically ordained by Abner Doubleday, isn't it? Especially if Granite City's gift to baseball, Dal Maxvill, can reach into his hat — or up his sleeve and produce another starting pitcher.

Democracy would benefit China

To the editor:

A new commodity is sweeping through world markets: democracy. From the shipyards of Gdansk, Poland, to the borders of Lithuania and the USSR, there has been a bull market on the stock of democratic reform.

Led by the student and intellectual community, China's people urged their government, through peaceful protests and non-violent strikes, to open up the 40-year-old Communist system and begin introducing reforms.

But on June 4, 1989, the People's Liberation Army slaughtered thousands of its own brothers and sisters in Tiananmen Square in the heart of Beijing. The Avenue of Eternal Peace became an avenue of brutality. The army put a murderous stranglehold on its own people's calls for democracy.

Such atrocities are unconscionable. I joined with my colleagues in signing a telegram addressed to Chinese Prime Minister Li Peng condemning the massacre in Beijing.

China is engaged in systematically purging the country of its best and brightest. These are the citizens who are striving for a taste of democracy. These are the people whom Deng Xiaoping and Li Peng are ordering arrested on charges of treason or rumor-mongering. It is these people to whom we Americans must lend our support and commitment.

In the past decade, the Chinese slowly opened their window on the world and participated in numerous cultural exchanges with the West. These varied opportunities opened the eyes of Chinese citizens to the vibrant colors of democracy.

The violence left Chinese and Americans stranded on the other's continent. I spent numerous hours communicating with the State Department and wrote to Secretary of State James A. Baker III urging him to ensure safe harbor out of China for Americans in Beijing and outlying regions.

Dozens of Illinoisans were caught in the middle of this battle. The scramble for safe haven ensued. In Tianjin, nearly 100 American professors and students, some from Illinois, were trapped with no secure passage out of the province. Thanks to my diligent staff, we were able to contact Americans in Tianjin and provide both families and the State Department with important information. Our information helped the State Department in its efforts to secure the safety of all Americans in China.

Here at home, other concerns need attention. Chinese studying in the U.S. held their own peaceful protests and demonstrations to express solidarity with their countrymen. I recently spoke to some of these brave patriots who are studying at various Illinois universities. They apprised me of their opinions and thoughts on the situation.

They announced their commitment to the advance of democratic reforms, but naturally fear for the lives of their friends at home, and for themselves when they return. They fear the certain prospect of reprisals from the government for their support of the democratic movement. Following reports of harassment and intimidation by Chinese diplomatic officials, President Bush offered to extend all student visas for one year upon request.

While this is a step in the right direction, I feel stronger measures are required. I introduced a bill that would give emergency relief to students whose visas have expired. This bill would allow students to qualify for visa adjustment whereas President Bush's proposal makes them ineligible for such an adjustment.

It would be dastardly for us to send these students back to China at a time when the Chinese government is busily executing its own people. Until China becomes less volatile, the students should have a chance to stay in America, where they will find a safe haven.

Democracy is a blue chip stock. Inevitably, at some time in the future, the stock will be for sale once again, and the Chinese students now in America as well as their fellow citizens back home will "buy in."

Chinese leaders may choose to close the curtains on the window of democracy. They may smother the students and workers who openly advocate it. But they won't be able to eradicate their people's thoughts of an open, democratic society.

I will always remember the picture of one student staring down a row of tanks, halting for a moment the madness in China. The Chinese government will soon realize that a division of tanks won't be able to execute the collective thoughts of one billion people.

Message to out-of-towners: Go home

To the editor:

On Saturday, July 29, a mob of people from out-of-state swooped down on our city to break Illinois laws and consume Granite City police time and tax dollars.

This mob converged on the patients of the Hope Clinic and refused to cooperate with our police when told to get off personal property.

As Granite City taxpayers, we are disgusted that out-of-towners ate up our tax dollars to process their planned-out crimes against person and property. (Two more protests took place the following week.)

We say, "Go home where you belong."

Horror is in the watching

Twenty-five years ago, my friend Steve Fincher (his family has operated Mick's Garage in Macomb for many years) and I used to sit in front of the TV set on Saturday afternoons, scaring ourselves silly with the monster movies.

The likes of Frankenstein and other just-as-believable characters invariably drove us behind a chair. Occasionally we'd peek out to see what was going on. We loved it, and our mothers knew we weren't tearing anything up in the process. We usually saved that until after the movie.

Believe it or not, that's what occurs to me when I see movie ads for today's horror films. The Creature from the Black Lagoon scared me a quarter-century ago. Today, it's the kids that have got me worried.

Fred Kruger can be seen in theaters across the land in the latest "Nightmare on Elm Street" sequel, the number of which I'm not sure about and really don't care. Jason, I understand, has turned up again in the newest "Friday the 13th." This time he's in Manhattan hacking and slashing instead of Camp. Wherever it was. Frankly, I wished he'd stayed.

What I know from today's horror movies, I know only as a curious journalist. I've never paid a dollar to go to a movie house to watch these films, and without TV wouldn't know about them at all.

But it doesn't take more than five-minute exposure to know that special effects men now leave nothing to the imagination. Blood flows freely and body parts stack up. It's ghastly imagery that not only makes your flesh crawl but turns you nauseous.

Still, the kids flock to the cinema. The 15- to 25-year-old crowd dominates the box office, so whatever young people want to watch, Hollywood produces, no matter how unseemly.

And while it's the kids watching, also know that it is the adults' people my age, for crying out loud — that are making these movies. Those same directors were probably raised, like me, on Saturday afternoon monster films. Somehow, however, I turned out normal. But they're making all the money. One day I'll figure this out.

Equates Sims' act with pro-choice

To the editor:

New developments in the Heather Sims murder case continue to make headline news, because most of the people in the area are so outraged over the fact that the defenseless infant was possibly murdered by her own mother.

If Paula Sims is guilty, the people are justly upset. No one should be allowed to kill off their unwanted children.

Assuming that Sims may be found guilty, I wonder how many of the same irate citizens would be equally upset if she had committed the act a few months earlier, when Heather was the same baby, but dependent upon her mother for food and for her physical well-being from inside her mother's womb, instead of from outside of it.

Something is wrong with our way of thinking and with our laws when we say that it would have been OK if done just a little sooner.

People do have a right to choose whether or not

Says new billing wouldn't inhibit phone calls

To the editor:

The July 27 editorial that opposed pay-only-for-what-you-use service for Illinois Bell customers, ignores some important facts.

Phone users won't be billed extra for local phone calls. Instead, we would completely eliminate the current $4.85 monthly flat-rate charge, and residence customers would pay about a nickel a call for more than 50 percent of their calls — regardless of length.

Nearly two-thirds of Granite City residents and 75 percent of businesses would see no change or a reduction in their usage charges, as a result of Illinois Bell's pay-only-for-what-you-use service.

The plan would offer reductions of about 50 percent or more for longer-distance calling — such as from Granite City to Belleville — and discount by one-third the price of calls made on weekends and evenings. It also establishes automatic volume discounts, so that the more calls you make, the less you pay per call.

Although phone bills will be determined by how customers use the phone, the average Granite City residence will see monthly savings of $1.30 in usage charges due to this change. The average business will see a monthly reduction of $8.69 in calling charges.

Instead of inhibiting calling, as your editorial suggested, replacing flat-rate service with pay-only-for-what-you-use service would result in about 70 percent of customers saving money on their monthly bills.

How about discussion of issues?

To the editor:

Abortion protesters have been arrested again at the Hope Clinic. Some were charged with criminal trespass to property, mob action and battery.

Why do the protesters have to use physical force to keep women from entering the clinic? Can't women be persuaded from having abortions by intelligent, rational discussion?

It would seem that if a decision were in the best interests of the woman and in keeping with high religious and moral teachings, then it ought to be possible to enable a woman to come to that decision by calm communication.

Bill 'Operation Rescue'

To the editor:

As a Madison County taxpayer, I would be extremely interested in how much the recent Operation Rescue media exposure cost Madison County.

Is it fair for a national organization to monopolize our county police time, county jail space and the court docket just to acquire media coverage?

It might be a good idea to bill Operation Rescue, and any other organization that uses county resources for personal gain, for expenses incurred.

Silent majority to speak out

To the editor:

I want to commend the Granite City Police Department for their enforcement of the mob action laws by arresting the demonstrators at the Hope Clinic on July 29. When 200 people interfere with the legally established right of women to a medical service, they are doing more than mere trespassing.

My heart goes out to those women who, when facing one of the most difficult decisions a woman can make, are subjected to ugly confrontation by strangers. The decision to have or not to have an abortion is a private one and the right to choose is a legal right.

I am sick and tired of a vocal minority attempting to impose their religious views on the rest of the nation. Far too many politicians have allowed themselves to be intimidated. Poll after poll indicates that the majority of citizens favor a woman's right to choose. While I greatly respect other people's right to practice their religion, I object to having anyone's religion become the basis for government policy.

It is time for the silent majority to let the politicians know that we will oppose any attempt to interfere with the fundamental right of a woman to make her own decision about abortion.

An open air excursion features two unique means of transportation on the night of Friday, Aug. 18.

The moonlight adventure will begin with a ride aboard an open-top, double-deck bus from the assembly point to the train platform. The ride will be on an open railroad car (fenced with bench seating) along the Mississippi River. Three runs (each with a 15-minute scenic stop) will have departures at 7 & 9 and 9 p.m. Passengers wishing to transport upon this dual-mode train will be asked to board the bus and be asked to meet the tour conductor at the Riverview Plaza Shopping Center, 1000 Broadway and Riverview 15 minutes before departure. The open top bus will travel along Riverview Drive to the St. Louis Convention Center, St. Louis & Chapin Park of B.

The hour-long train ride along the Mississippi River will provide several different vistas on the six-mile run. At the south end of the line the Arch and lights of downtown will sparkle in the distance and at the remote north end there will be a view of Dam 27 and a chance to see the reflection of the moon in the turbulent waters.

While aboard the train the travelers on this lunar excursion will be treated to a cold soft drink en route. The train will be operated by the 1934 12-year-old coach substituted for the open car if necessary. The fare of $10 per person, non-refundable, includes the open air car, open air train and beverage. Groups of 20 or more may make reservations and receive a discount of $2 per person. Psychiatrists have written that Australians rarely are troubled with manic-depressive disease because the water down under is full of lithium.

But Yahoo Serious, co-producer, co-writer, director, editor and title-roll player in "Young Einstein," obviously is abstaining from Australia's calming elixir, judging from the accelerated silliness in the film.

The result—hardly is seious, steeped in sheer idiocy and pandemonium, and the galvanized Yahoo (born George Fead) probably will find his niche among teen-agers. Considerably less Yahoo and a stronger script would improve the film's audience prospects, with adults denouncing the picture for trashing Nobel Prize winner Albert Einstein with heaps of sophomoric humor, stupid sight gags and tarring lapses in continuity.

On the other hand, there is some decent stunt work, and Jeff Darling's cinematography is colorful and finely detailed.

Mum and Dad, simple country folks, have produced a brilliant eccentric who plays symphonies on his treasured viola while washing himself and the dinner dishes in the same tub at the same time, a gross and disgust-

One day Albert and Dad visit deceased Grandpa's still where he tries to inject bubbles into beer. Instead Albert accidentally splits the atom. Whereupon he rows his boat across the sea, climbs a mountain or two, walks the desert and arrives in Sydney, Australia, hoping to patent his atom-splitting theory (except he can't patent a concept, only an invention, says the officious patent-office clerk)

This breathtaking satire continues with Albert boarding a train and meeting equally gifted Marie Curie (Odile Le Clezio), the Polish scientist immortalized in the 1937 movie "Madame Curie," who along with her husband discovered radium and won the Nobel prize for chemistry in 1911. I mention this only as a point of information; "Young Einstein" does not

Also traveling with them is oily entrepreneur and patent-thief Preston Preston, a villain in this absurd extravaganza played by John Howard. Preston Preston plans to steal Einstein's bubble theory in order to manufacture a gigantic atomic beer keg, actually the world's first atomic bomb.

Various sidebar yarns intrude including Albert's involvement with Marie Curie, and his ejection from Sydney University. Then it's off to France, where Albert joins Darwin, Edison, Marconi and other scientists and receives a prestigious scientific award for turning his classical viola into an electric guitar and inventing rock & roll!

The task is clearly too much for him—and the picture staggers under a load of dumb sledgehammer slapstick. But if sheer manic energy is what it takes these days to score as a movie comedian, gangling Aussie Yahoo Serious may hit his stride another time, aided by better writers.

Wizards blast Miners 11-1 in playoffs

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

SAUGET — Come rain, come shine, come lunar-eclipse, the Miners just can't beat the Saugat Wizards.

Granite City had one more crack at the Wizards on Wednesday, but the Miners' hopes in the Metro East Night League playoffs were blotted out even more than the moon in an 11-1 defeat.

The Miners were in the game for 2½ innings, but lost a big scoring chance in the top of the third. That opened the gates for the Wizards, who pounded out 16 hits and took full advantage of five Granite City errors when the Wizards advanced to next week's Night League championship game at East Alton. The Silver Bullets beat Trenton 8-0 in Wednesday's other semifinal.

Granite City finished its Night League season at 9-6 and is 23-22 overall heading into Sunday's 1:30 p.m. doubleheader at Dal Maxville Field against East Alton in the Mon-Clair League regular-season finale.

"I thought we had a good chance when we came down here," said catcher/manager Daren DePew. "But how many times did we strike out? You have to be a lot more aggressive than we were."

The answer to DePew's strike-out question is 13. And they didn't play favorites. Three different Wizard hurlers combined for the 13 K's and held the Miners to five hits. DePew was the only Miner with more than one hit and was also the only player in the lineup not to strike out.

"Our pitchers were really on their game tonight," said Saugat manager Bob Hughes. "I hope we're finally getting back on track. We've won six in a row now, and this is the time to get hot."

Lefthander Joe Mehallow got the win as he struck out seven in five innings. John Parke got four strikeouts in two innings and Kurt Junker pitched the eighth and added two more strikeouts.

"I don't think the pitching we saw tonight was anything different than what we've seen before," said DePew. "You've got to score more than one run to beat anyone, especially these guys."

Scott LeVault (2-8) took the loss for the Miners, allowing 13 hits and eight runs in seven innings. He made it through the first, but was hurt by a two-out walk in the second to Dan Nicholson. Jason Boehlow followed by getting a low pitch over the fence in left for a 2-0 Wizard lead.

"Scott was trying to be too fine to be No. 7 hitter," DePew said of LeVault's only walk. "Then he got behind to the next guy. The pitch was down, but the guy was swinging because he was ahead on the count (2-1). You can't pitch behind all the time."

Boehlow played in the Metro League in St. Louis this year and was available to the Wizards during the week. He led the nation in home runs for a freshman with 12 while playing for Hughes at St. Louis U. this spring.

"Jason has always contributed when he's played for us," said

Hughes. "It was not a real good pitch to hit out, but he reached down and got it. I really haven't seen a park that can hold him."

The Miners had their best crack in the third. Rich Wilson blooped a hit to left, Kevin DePew got an infield hit and Tim Hogan reached when the Wizards messed up a sacrifice bunt. Tim Wargo popped out to ourselves out of the inning. We had Tommy, myself and Bobby Sirtak coming up, so we just can't afford to make bad baserunning plays."

"Joey hurt himself by not fielding his position real well in that inning," Hughes said. "But they really didn't hit the ball hard in that inning at all. Granite City didn't really look that aggressive at the plate. They were taking two strikes a lot. But I don't want to take anything away from our pitching."

Escaping the top of the third inning, the Wizards broke it open against LeVault in the bottom of the third. Neil Fiala, Jeff Junker and Jim Greenwald had consecutive hits before Rick Fiala doubled in two runs and later scored on an error to make it 6-1.

Dave Kassebaum, Jeff Junker and Greenwald all had three hits for the Wizards, who have struggled offensively for the past six weeks.

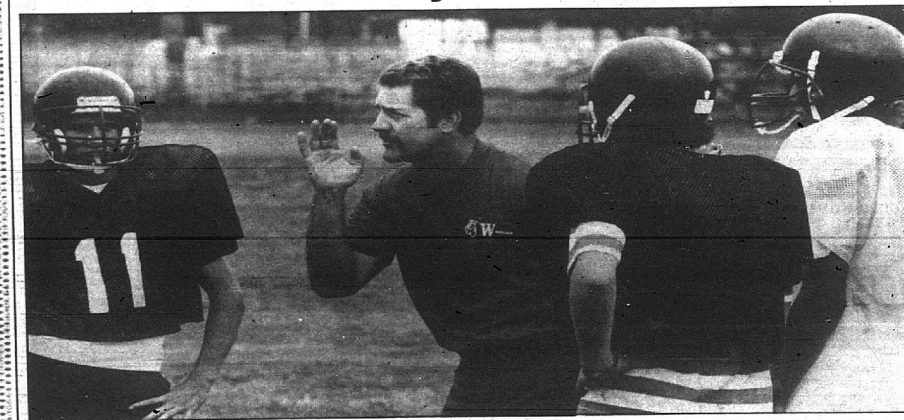

"Offense has been our downfall," said Hughes. "July was total chaos. We've had some guys missing at crucial times. And we lost two of the best hitters in the league from last year in Robert Giegling and Larry Pitchford. It's been easier to pitch around some guys this year without these two. We hit 90 home runs last year, but only 19 this season."

Kassebaum drove in another run in the sixth and it was 8-1 going into the bottom of the eighth when Mark Bollen relieved LeVault. Three singles plated one run before Bollen walked Rick Fiala to load the bases. Hughes hit a grounder to Greco at first, but his throw to second was wild as two singles scored to end the game by the 10-run rule.

"I still think Granite City has a good young team," Hughes said. "We've been fortunate against them this year. They're short of pitching, but I was pleased with the way our pitchers handled some good hitters tonight."

Interior lines keys to success for Warriors, Trojans

Yates looks to senior line to lead comeback

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — Building from within is Ron Yates' main chore as the Warrior football program begins the climb back towards respectability.

There are plenty of question marks this week as the Warriors opened practice in preparation for the 1989 season, which begins Sept. 1 at Cahokia. But one area in which Yates is hoping Granite City will be strong is the interior line.

Returning there are seven senior lettermen whom Yates hopes will be the nucleus of the team. Granite City is likely to go as far as Brad Massey, Joe Thomas, Bryan Neidhardt, Frank Vivos, Danny Bristol, Eric Lane and Larry Hahn can block on offense and tackle on defense.

"That's our big strength right now," Yates said. "A good offensive line will make your quarterback and running backs look a lot better. That group of seven worked together a lot on the weights during the off-season, so we're counting on them to lead us."

That group of seven is already down to six, however, and could stay that way for a while. Hahn has some calcium deposits in his knee and isn't suited up for practice. Yates said the senior center could be out 2-3 weeks and maybe longer.

"That doesn't help," Yates said. "We're not a big, deep and talented team that can afford injuries to key people."

The Warriors also can't afford key players from last year not coming out this year. But two seniors Joe Wallace and Matt Schneke have decided to concentrate on other sports. Wallace has a big future in basketball while Schneke is concentrating on hockey.

"I don't want to belabor the point too much, but Joe could do a lot of things for us," Yates said. "He was a defensive back; he could punt, kick short field goals and he was our backup quarterback. But if he doesn't want to come out and risk getting injured because of basketball, that's fine. If he did come out

Blockers needed for Madison backs

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

MADISON — The problem is a familiar one for Don Smith. The solution is often elusive.

Smith begins his eighth season as head football coach at Madison High School on Sept. 1 when the Trojans host Waterloo at Sam Dymas Memorial Field. Between now and then, Smith will try to find a few people who can block for his running backs.

"We've got plenty of people who can run with the ball," said Smith. "But we have to find some linemen. We just couldn't get anything going last year in a lot of games because our runners had nowhere to run."

Last year was a long one for Smith and the Trojans. It was a 2-7 dourer coming off a playoff appearance in 1987. Some of senior running back Ian Smith's best runs were just getting back to the line of scrimmage. Don Smith is hoping for better this year, but it's much too early to tell if he has the answers.

"They cut out the freshman program this year," he said. "That hurts, but we have some freshmen out here this week, and some of them are pretty big boys. We have some who hope will get even bigger. But it's still way too early to tell if they're going to be much of an impact this season."

The Trojans' schedule is definitely easier this year than last.

That's based on the fact that Metro East Lutheran replaces East St. Louis Assumption, which closed its doors in the spring, had one of the area's premier small school football programs. Metro East Lutheran, on the other hand, is in its first year of varsity competition.

"That's a pretty big change, isn't it," Smith said. "We were one of the few schools in this area that still played Assumption (the Trojans never beat the Pioneers). Metro East Lutheran played a junior varsity schedule last year, and they will have played almost a full season by the time we get them (at home Oct. 27 in the season finale). So they'll have some experience by then, and we're going to be an awfully young team."

"We were young last year, but that was with a lot of sophomores. We'll have quite a few juniors this year."

One senior is lineman Demarco Cason, who led the way on the line with 28 tackles, 18 assists and two sacks in 1987. The Trojans also avoided trouble when junior lineman Greg Volokit decided not to transfer to Alton Marquette.

"Better coaching here, I guess," Smith said with a laugh. Volokit had 27 tackles and 21 assists last year. Smith is considering using him as a fullback this year in the wishbone offense. Also figuring in that is junior halfback Tony Treadway, who had 30 yards rushing and three touchdowns in 1988 — respectable figures considering the weak line.

"We'll have to run out of the wishbone because our line isn't going to be very big," Smith said.

Federico Walker was the quarterback much of the year in 1988 as a sophomore. But Cernyn Thomas, Derrick Williams and Paris Johnson also figure to be given an equal shot at the job. The Trojans had 28 players out for practice on Tuesday, but Smith expected at least 10 more the rest of the week and always counts on adding more when school starts.

"We'd like to have 50 guys out here by the time the season starts," he said. "But we'll be counting on having a lot of guys who can play offense and defense. It's tough because enrollment keeps going down. We're down to about 350 at the high school now."

"But the weather has been fantastic so far, and these guys have been pretty good to work with. I think we can get back around 500 this year. We've got Waterloo coming to our place and Quincy Notre Dame traveling down here again."

"We have to get back to the basics because we have so many new guys. With no soccer at high school, maybe we can find a couple more good athletes."

DON SMITH instructs Tony Treadway on the proper stance during Madison High School's football practice on Tuesday.

Mike Wallace returns to Tri-City winner's circle

By Joe Senter
Correspondent

GRANITE CITY — Mike Wallace returned to the winner's circle Saturday at Tri-City Speedway.

Wallace, from St. Louis, made a clean sweep in the U.M.P. late model stock cars as his car, sponsored by Bob Quinn's Auto Bargain Center and Althoff Trucking Co., won its heat race and the trophy dash before coming back to win the 25-lap main event on the half-mile dirt track. Jim Durbin, Jim Swank and Bert Cheatham were in hot pursuit with all the horsepower they could dig up, but Wallace was not to be denied his perfect night at the checkered flag. It was Cheatham second, Durbin third, Swank fourth, Bill Faust fifth and Mark Gansmann sixth. Gansmann is a newcomer to late model racing.

Swank and Gansmann followed Wallace in the trophy dash with Billy West taking the other heat race.

John Seets chalked up another victory in the econo late model feature event as he outdueled Don Carter, Tom Seets and Matt Taylor. Gary Archambault won the trophy dash powered by Jim Mogg and Randy Korte. Rick Bayer, Matt Taylor and Korte took the heat races.

Don McElroy won the street stock car feature event followed by Darrel Hoffman, Maury Bargetz and Jim Martin. Heat races were taken by Ron Hartnagel, Bill Vinyard and Dave Jones. Jim Martin took the trophy dash.

The U.M.P. late models, econo late models and street stocks race every Saturday at 6 p.m. The next special event will be on Aug. 30 when Bobby Wente Jr. will bring the Mighty Midgets to the speedway in the Bob Tutter Memorial Triple Crown Racing Classic along with the econo late models and modifieds. Tatterall was a many-time Mighty Midget champion in the 1960s and 1970s.

The event will bring Midget drivers from many states. The gates will open at 4 p.m., with racing at 7:30 p.m.

WBV announces grid schedule

WBV-AM (1260) of Belleville will be broadcasting 16 area high school football games live this fall, including two Warrior games.

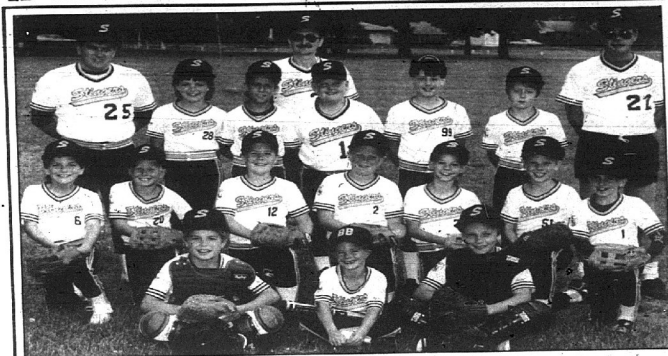

"We will carry a feature Belleville high school game on Friday and Saturday nights," said WBV sports director Joe May. "The schedule will feature a combination of Belleville East, Belleville West and Althoff games."

Granite City's home games against Belleville West (Sept. 15) and Belleville East (Oct. 27) will be broadcast live at 7:30 p.m. In addition, Fridays will be "High School Friday Night" on WBV with sports anchor Mike Blackshire hosting a pre-game show that will set the stage for the evening's featured game.

"There will be a half-time update of other games in the metro east, and immediately following the feature game, I will do a post-game coach's interview with a Belleville High School head coach," said May.

and was tentative, he probably would get hurt. And the same with Matt."

Junior Bobby Thomas is the quarterback until proven otherwise. Sophomore Van Burk is the backup as well as the starter for the sophomore team.

"Bobby is a little stronger and a little smarter as he gains experience," Yates said. "Again, a good line will help him quite a bit. We want to be able to throw the ball a lot of play action. But we can't get behind or other teams won't respect the run."

"We're probably going to have Billy and a few other sophomores dress for varsity games just to have some depth. And I hope we don't have to bring them off the bench. It's tough to ask sophomores to come up and compete at the varsity level."

against the kind of schools we play."

The Warriors, 0-9 last year and losers of their last 14, are practicing three times a day this week — at 7:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m., and 7:30 p.m.

"That's mostly because of the strike last year, although we practiced three times during pre-season then," Yates said. "We don't burn them out too much during the middle session. We come out here for about 45 minutes of throwing and catching the ball, then work on the weights. And we do a lot of cone work in the morning and evening. You can't do too much yet because we're not allowed full pads and contact this week."

Yates has between 70 and 75 players out this week, including 32 sophomores.

WIBV

Following that show, Black-shere will be back to host a metro east scoreboard show that will include post-game interviews with head coaches from several schools as well as reports on other games from the WIBV staff.

"It's an exciting concept and I think metro east sports fans will really like what we will be doing with high school sports this year," said May.

The complete schedule of games on WIBV is: Sept. 1 — Quincy at Belleville West, 8 p.m.; Sept. 2 — Alhoff at Hazelwood East, 2 p.m.; Sept. 8 — Alhoff at Belleville East, 8 p.m.; Sept. 9 — Cahokia at Belleville West, 8 p.m.; Sept. 15 — Belleville West at GRANITE CITY, 7:30 p.m.; Sept. 16 — Quincy at Alhoff, 7:30 p.m.; Sept. 22 — DeSmet at Belleville East, 8 p.m.; Sept. 23 — Cape Central at Alhoff, 7:30 p.m.; Sept. 29 — Alhoff at Belleville West, 8 p.m.; Oct. 6 — East St. Louis at Belleville East, 8 p.m.; Oct. 7 — Springfield Griffin at Alhoff, 7:30 p.m.; Oct. 13 — Belleville East at Collinsville, 7:30 p.m.; Oct. 20 — Belleville West at Belleville East, 8 p.m.; Oct. 21 — Paducah Tighman at Alhoff, 7:30 p.m.; Oct. 27 — Belleville East at GRANITE CITY, 7:30 p.m.

In addition, WIBV has been awarded exclusive St. Louis market rights to all University of Illinois football and basketball games for the 1989-90 season.

The announcement was made jointly by May and Rich Shaw, director of station relations for Raycom Sports and Entertainment.

"It's a great opportunity for WIBV to be the official voice of

Joe May
...WIBV sports director
the Fighting Illini in the St. Louis market," said May. "WIBV has always been one of the radio sports leaders in this market and the acquisition of Illinois football and basketball enhances that position."

The season begins on Labor Day when Illinois travels to Southern Cal to meet the Trojans. There will be 11 football games and 28 basketball games on the schedule.

"Illinois has an excellent chance to have a strong football season and get a possible bowl bid," said May. "And everyone knows that they should be a college basketball power again this season."

The football schedule is: 9/2 at USC, 7 p.m.; 9/16 at Colorado, 2:30 p.m.; 9/23 Utah State, 1 p.m.; 10/7 Ohio State, noon; 10/14 at Michigan State, noon; 10/28 Wisconsin, 1 p.m.; 11/4 at Iowa, 1 p.m.; 11/11 Michigan, 1 p.m.; 11/18 Indiana, 1 p.m.; 11/25 at Northwestern, 1 p.m.

WIBV will also carry several other major college football games this year, including Notre Dame-Miami on Nov. 25 at 5:30 p.m. Other games include West Virginia at Maryland, Sept. 9, 11:30 a.m.; Ohio State at USC, Sept. 23, 4 p.m. (in progress); Pittsburgh at West Virginia, Sept. 30, 10:40 a.m.; USC at Washington State, Sept. 30, 3:30 p.m.; Arkansas at Texas Tech, Oct. 14, 6:30 p.m.; Washington State at Arizona State, Oct. 28, 8 p.m.; Alabama at LSU, Nov. 11, 8:30 p.m.; Clemson at South Carolina, Nov. 18, 6:30 p.m.; Alabama at Auburn, Dec. 2, 12:30 p.m. Depending on game time, WIBV may carry the Michigan-Iowa game from Iowa City on Oct. 21 and a late game to be announced later on Nov. 4.
